ABOUT

(The) Joy of Missing Out invites you to step into a playful, technicolour dream-world where the circadian rhythm and wholesome vibes trump the jol, so-so social obligations and 2am booty calls.

Among a myriad of other (albeit more significant) impacts, the coming and going of a pandemic marked a new era in how we treat social interactions. As this dystopian historical event came to a close, on a personal level, I encountered a lot of initial resistance to slowing down, taking pause, and making peace with the time I'd lost. As I started to appreciate and surrender to the virtues of the slow life, this inner restlessness came to a thankful end.

These days, I generally favour productive, early wake-ups, compelling conversations with my friends and partner, and small, intimate group hangs over loud, jam-packed bars. Oh! And walks - lots and lots of walks.

As I approach my thirties, this exhibition aims to celebrate my "granny era" through the lens of colour, humour, introspection and joy. Join me as I invite you to enjoy the spoils of self-love and a simplified yet rich, meaningful life.
